PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

Our largest position continues to be FLORIDA EAST COAST INDUSTRIES (FLA). For the benefit of stockholders who are not familiar with the company, FLA is headquartered in St. Augustine, Florida, and has two main businesses: the Flagler Development Company (real estate) and the Florida East Coast Railroad. Just today, Florida East Coast Industries released its second quarter results, and they were quite favorable. For example, the railroad revenues increased by 11% and the operating profit was ahead 13%. During the same six month period, the real estate company's revenues increased 6%. I continue to believe that FLA would be favorably impacted by a lifting of the embargo with Cuba. The company's main rail business is a freight line operating between Jacksonville and Miami.

Following the end of our fiscal year, we added one speculative investment to the portfolio, CANCERVAX (CNVX), a U.S. company which just announced a business venture with Cuba. The deal was done with U.S. government approval and is related to the development of three cancer drugs developed in the Center for Molecular Immunology in Havana. To comply with U.S. regulations, CancerVax will pay for its investment with food and medical supplies rather than U.S. dollars. Since the U.S. government has now permitted this type of business arrangement with Cuba, we are reviewing the possibility of similar transactions.
