Re: Merger Announcement

From: Randy Hogan, Chairman & Chief Executive Officer

To: Pentair Employees

We are pleased to share some exciting news with you. This morning, we announced an agreement to combine Pentair and Tyco's Flow Control business in a merger that will create a global growth leader with $7.7 billion in pro forma 2012 revenues with strong positions in flow control, filtration and equipment protection. We expect this transforming transaction to accelerate and enhance our growth strategy and provide substantial benefits for our many stakeholders, including our employees. It truly is an exciting day for Pentair.

For those of you who may not be familiar with Tyco Flow Control, it is a leading manufacturer of flow control products – it designs, manufactures, sells and services valves, pipes, fittings, automation and heat tracing products for process, oil and gas, power and mining markets as well as the water and wastewater market. With 2011 revenues of $3.6 billion, the Tyco Flow Control business represents a complementary fit with Pentair's technologies and solutions.

Compelling Strategic and Financial Rationale

Over Pentair's 45-year history, we have successfully transformed our company's portfolio and continuously improved our operating performance. As you know, over the past few years we implemented our Global Business Unit (GBU) organizational structure and deepened and broadened the Pentair Integrated Management System (PIMS) to drive high levels of performance. Building on our strong momentum, the combination with Tyco's Flow Control business – which will increase our scale, expand our geographic reach and diversify our sectors served – will further enhance our ability to provide customers with solutions for the “new” new world, drive shareholder value, and create new opportunities for our employees.

The boards and senior leadership teams of Tyco and Pentair are very excited about this combination. By joining forces with Tyco's Flow Control business, we will be part of an even larger, dynamic global organization with a continued focus on growth. The combined company will have greater earnings potential as well as financial flexibility with a stronger balance sheet. Moreover, with a more efficient structure and the potential for significant synergies, we expect the combination to result in substantial value creation.

What Are Some of the Details?

The new combined company will be named Pentair and we will continue to be listed on the New York Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol “PNR.” Pentair’s senior corporate leadership team – led by me as Chairman and CEO – will continue to guide the new company. And, Pentair’s main U.S. offices will remain in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

As with many large transactions, a few changes are to be expected. The new company will be incorporated in Switzerland, where Tyco is currently incorporated. The Pentair Board of Directors will add two new directors to be designated by Tyco. Together, we will have approximately 30,000 employees – essentially doubling the current size of Pentair – and a broader geographic footprint, with approximately 60 percent of sales outside North America and almost $2 billion of sales in fast-growth markets.

As you may know, Tyco, with 2011 sales of over $17 billion, is in the process of separating its three operating units, including the Flow Control Division, into separate public entities. Pending the expected successful completion of the Tyco separation, as well as shareholder and regulatory approvals, we expect this transaction to close in the third quarter of 2012.

What Happens Next?

First, we are communicating the value we anticipate this combination will bring to our shareholders, employees, customers and other constituents. Starting today there will be a number of scheduled events, including investor conference calls and various media and employee communications. We encourage you to review this material.

Over the coming days and weeks we will be providing additional information through town hall meetings in various locations. We will do our best to keep you informed, but if you have questions, please do not hesitate to contact your business and function leaders.

It is also important for all of us to remember that we must continue to operate as independent companies until the transaction closes. Most importantly, we should maintain our focus on our business objectives and do everything we can to ensure we continue to deliver value to our customers, shareholders and fellow employees.

Integration Plans

As far as next steps, we are well along in creating a dedicated integration team – which we expect to be approximately 25 to 40 highly capable leaders from both “legacy” Pentair and the Tyco Flow leadership. This team will be led by an integration leader who will report to me. The primary focus of this group will be to ensure an efficient organizational structure, ensure process standardization and aggressively drive on-boarding and communication for the new Pentair organization. Importantly, this merger represents an opportunity for the combined organization to embrace best-in-class processes, like PIMS.

More to Come...

I know many questions exist, and the communication process is just beginning. There is a significant amount of information in the press release, investor presentation (which can be accessed after 7:15 a.m. Central time in the U.S. in the investor section of www.pentair.com) and also some important messages in my video – which you can access here: <http://announcements.pentair.com/SitePages/Home.aspx>. I hope you take the time to review these documents and video. As you become more familiar with the transaction and the value we expect it to create I am sure you will share our excitement.

We look forward to providing more information as the process moves forward. In the meantime, we appreciate your focus on your customers and the job at hand. Let’s continue to ‘Win Right’ in everything we do.
